Total Defense Policy Against Total Attack

President Pledges Defense for The West Hemisphere

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

DAYTON, O., Oct. 12—(AP)—President Roosevelt enunciated a policy of total defense of the Americas against a total attack from any segment of the world tonight and pledged the United States navy and air force to the defense of all the Western Hemisphere.

The President's address, one of his most momentous declarations on international conditions and foreign policy, was broadcast to every nation of the hemisphere.

He said that this country, as in 1798, insists on the peaceful use of the Atlantic and Pacific for trade and commerce. He said the American nations were united in their determination to resist the threats of dictators and rejected the doctrine of appeasement.

He renewed assurances that Britain would receive all aid short of war.

He voiced confidence in the ability of the Americas, bound together in the spirit of good neighbors, to resist any infiltration of "alien political and economic ideas which would destroy our freedom and democracy."

"When we speak of defending this Western Hemisphere," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "we are speaking not only of the territory of North, Central and South America and the immediately adjacent islands. We include the right to the peaceful use of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. That has been our traditional policy.

Protect Against Aggression

"We of the Americas still consider that this defense of these oceans of the Western Hemisphere against acts of aggression is the first factor in the defense and protection of our own territorial integrity. We reaffirm that policy lest there be any doubt of our intention to maintain it."

The address was made from a dining car as his special train stood in the Dayton station. It combined a stinging critique of the methods of what he termed totalitarian and dictator nations with a firm declaration of the determination of the Uited Staes to prepare for war as the best insurance of continued peace.

The chief executive said that "divide and conquer" had been the battle cry of the totalitarian powers in their war against democracy, that it had succeeded in Europe, but that "on our continent it will fail."

"The core of our defense is the faith we have in the institutions we defend," the President asserted. "The Americas will not be scared or threatened into the ways the dictators want us to follow. No combination of dictator countries of Europe and Asia will halt us in the path we see ahead for ourselves and for democracy.

"No combination of dictator countries of Europe and Asia will stop the help we are giving to almost the last free people fighting to hold them at bay."

Post-Dispatch For Roosevelt

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch (Independent), which opposed President Roosevelt's reelection in 1936 and which often has been critical of his policies, announced in a Sunday editorial its support of the president for a third term.

"The decision is a hard one to make because it involves abandonment of the old American tradition against a third term and because of criticisms of the president which this newspaper has been obliged to make and which it continues to make," the Post-Dispatch said.

"To sum it up, after careful and open-minded study of the Willkie candidacy, we find it singularly unconvincing, singularly empty of content," the paper continued.

"Roosevelt, as a president, as a statesman, as a politician, as a leader, is a known quantity. Willkie, after a nationwide campaign, is still, in many respects, an unknown quantity."

Willkie Retort Over an Attack In a Pamphlet

Points Out That Different Crisis Than 1933 Exists

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight that the Democratic National committee had distributed "a scurrilous and indecent pamphlet" which "even contains an attack against my father and my wife."

Addressing a loudly cheering crowd in Hawkins Stadium here, the Republican presidential nominee said he had just listened to President Roosevelt speaking "about the necessity of tolerance in America x x x."

As he stood in front of a large picture of himself under bright floodlights, Willkie said before beginning his prepared speech that the chief executive was "perfectly right" in asking for tolerance.

Saying he would speak further on the subject later, the candidate said that "to describe in some degree the elements contained in it, it even contains an attack against my father and my wife."

The audience booed.

Cheer To Mrs. Willkie

Mrs. Willkie had stepped to the rostrum and received a cheer just prior to her husband's talk.

Saying that the statement was an example "of the difference between New Deal performance and profession," Willkie asserted that the administration had "set up class against class in America and group against group, section against section, all for political profit."

Declaring that the administration had failed to build a defense program, Willkie said extemporaneously that "sometimes I think the way it gets away (with failure) is the pure gall of it."

The candidate, turning to his discussion of international relations, asserted that if the Roosevelt administration had made adequate defense preparations "today, instead of talking loudly and carrying a swagger stick, we could be talking softly and carrying a big stick."

"Now you know it doesn't help defense a bit for the third term candidate to follow my tracks back into Pennsylvania and Ohio and inspect a steel mill," he said, "as I said yesterday in Cambridge, he doesn't know anything about manufacturing steel.

Fear of New Deal

Willkie described the New Deal government tonight as "a liability to the American peaple" and said that "it does not help them to defend themselves—it prevents them."

The Republican presidential nominee, coming here after a four day campaign tour through New England, said in a prepared speech that President Roosevelt had made a "brave statement" in 1933 when he declared there was nothing to fear except fear itself.

"Now we are in a different

Many Factors Determine Call Under Conscription

(Editor's Note: The following story answers numerous questions in connection with the draft law, which goes into operation next Wednesday with the registration of sixteen and a half million men between the ages 21 through 35.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Can your family, your employer, your business, your city, state and nation get along comfortably without you for a year?

When applied to each of the 16,404,000 men between 21 and 36, that question becomes the nub of selective service. The selective service organization will take an inventory of manpower to determine who can be spared for the army, after this fasnion:

Within five days after the drawing of a lottery in Washington to determine the order in which draft registrants will be called to serivce, registrants will begin receiving copies of a lengthy questionnaire. Mailing in daily lots of 50 for each county or each 30,000 of population should start about October 26 to October 31.

The questionnaire makes more than 100 inquiries into the physical and mental condition, number of dependents, citizenship, income, religious beliefs, criminal record and employment status of the registrant. It must be answered and returned in five days. Answers

School Lunches Program Is To Be Furthered

No General Local Relief Appeal In County This Year

There will be no local relief appeal in Pettis county in 1940, Julian H. Bagby, chairman of the Pettis Couny Relief committee, announced at a recent meeting of the board. The last such appeal was made in 1937.

The committee, however, recognizes the need for the establishment of a school lunch project for under-privileged children in the city, and is asking the cooperation of all citizens with a school lunch room ways and means committee, composed of Charles O. Botz, Joseph L. Rosenthal and Ray Hunt. This committee will make an effort to finance the program at a minimum cost.

Nourishment For Children

"It should be the aim of our community," said Mr. Bagby in an interview with a reporter Saturday, "to see that no children go hungry while attempting to obtain an education, a necessary factor in the guidance of their future lives. We realize the preferable way to see that these children have nourishing food would be to place adequate relief in the homes, but due to limited funds this procedure is impossible. Therefore the committee adopted the plan of reaching the greatest number of this group by using available space in the schools that are equipped to service this program and where all labor and foodstuffs will be furnished without any expense to the public school system."

Persons wishing to donate to this worthy cause may mail their checks to the members of the Ways and Means committee or leave their contribution at the Democrat office. Checks will be made payable to H. R. Harris, Treasurer, Pettis County Relief Committee.

The speeders arrested for going 45 miles per hour were Bobbie Paxton and Junior Paxton. Each paid a fine of $5.

Mrs. F. S. Long paid a $1 fine for blocking a sidewalk.

Dr. M. D. Weathers, colored, fined $1 for not having a city license

Heavy Bombing Attack on The French Coast

LONDON, Oct. 13—(AP)—Raid-scarred London's life buzzed with almost pre-blitzkrieg normalcy early today as Germany's air attack on the British capital suddenly lightened and, for the second straight night, the all clear signal was given hours before dawn.

After a prolonged period of quiet, the end of the nightly raid was signaled around 2:30 a. m. (7:30 p. m. CST). Previously, the city had experienced rare quiet spells between sporadic bombings.

Only eight or ten London areas reported hits by midnight, although the Germans began raiding last night precisely at the same hour of their appearance on three preceding nights.

From the Associated Press rooftop observation post, it seemed the lightest night of the air raids except for the single night last week when there was no raid at all because of heavy gales and rainstorms over southern England. But there was clear moonlight early today.

Casualties In Blast

One bomb fell in a famous London square, causing a number of casualties, some of them fatal. The explosion made a large crater near a well-known statue. A large dry goods store, a club, and a bank were badly damaged by the blast.

The relatively quiet spell over London extended as well over the provinces, where only one or two attacks were reported. One Midland town was bombed with high explosives and incendiary missiles which damaged a house, a shopping arcade and a hostel for aged men.

The raiders flew against London at intervals, dropped a few bombs and then scooted for home with anti-aircraft batteries sending bursts all around them.

The quiet spells in between made the London night seem almost normal again.

With the lessening of the attack, the midnight traffic became much heavier than on the nights since the Germans began raiding the capital every night.

But, of course, the city was not peaceful in the American style by any means. It was only comparatively so—buildings rocked to the crash of falling bombs, houses were smashed and "Molotoff breadbaskets" spewed their incendiary bombs upon parts of the capital. Some fires started but were put out quickly.

In one section, however, explosives damaged a number of homes, smashed the windows of

Tom Mix Dies In Accident

FLORENCE, Ariz., Oct. 12—(AP)—Tom Mix, hard riding star of the silent films and noted circus performer, was killed when his automobile went out of control and overturned 18 miles south of here today.

Mix was traveling alone.

The accident occurred on a detour skirting a road construction job. Mix was pinned under his automobile. He was dead when two highway employes discovered the overturned vehicle. The body was brought here.

As the colorful star of scores of silent western thrillers, Mix was the idol of millions of young Americans. In recent years, he had been the featured performer in circus riding exhibitions.

Coroner E. O. Devine said Mix apparently was killed instantly. There will be no inquest.

The cowboy star left Tucson about 1 p. m., apparently headed for Phoenix, Ariz. Local investigators said they understood he was serving as an advance agent for a circus.

Mix was carrying $6,000 in cash and also had several valuable diamonds on his person, police investigators said.

Hitler's Troubles Begin

No emperor ever patched together a more precarious empire than that over which Hitler now rules. It is an empire held only by force of arms. The subjects outside of Germany proper have only one thing in common—hatred for the Nazis. Minor revolts are already bursting like the little bubbles that rise to the top before the whole pan boils over. Most recent rebellion was reported in Oslo, where students rioted against the Norwegian Nazi leader, Major Vidkun Quisling.

No dynasty so constructed can endure for long. It will fall some day. Hardly anyone doubts that. The only question is: Will Britain become part of this regime before the final blowup?

The answer, to Americans at least, is pretty obvious.

Battle Against Truth

Some indication of the enormity of the task which the British are attempting in their censorship may be gleaned from a small dispatch from Bermuda. That resort had been somewhat deserted because of the war until recently, when a new batch of 200 censors arrived, bringing the total in Hamilton to more than 320. Now the leading hotels are filled—with censors.

It's their task to peruse every bit of mail which is carried on the clipper planes stopping there, amounting to hundreds of bags weekly.

So great is the battle to keep down the truth. Against such great odds do American reporters battle to tell this country what is actually happening in London and in Sussex and in Kent.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON.—When Harry Hopkins first proposed that Nelson Rockefeller be appointed coordinator of Latin American affairs of the National Defense Commission, there arose a mighty howl from the State Department.

Mr. Rockefeller, the State Department claimed, smelled too much of oil. His grandfather's and his father's oil companies had been down in Latin America battling the Mexican government, and the Bolivian and Colombian governments. So, the State Department argued, young Rockefeller would begin his job with two strikes against him.

The White House, concerned over these arguments, held up the Rockefeller appointment for approximately three months, finally bowed to the persuasive influence of Harry Hopkins and appointed the young millionaire anyway. Since then two things have happened:

1. The State Department has gone its own polite and dignified way, ignoring whenever possible the existence of anyone named Rockefeller.

2. The refreshing Mr. Rockefeller seems to have justified all that Harry Hopkins ever said about him by unobtrusively but energetically making good. In the short time he has been funcitioning under the long-winded title of "Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations between the American Republics" he has really breathed new life into one of the most important fields of American foreign affairs.

Radio City Executive

To get the complete picture, you have to know a bit more about young Mr. Rockefeller. The woods are full of Rockefellers. This particular one is 32 years old, the second son of John D., Jr. He has five children, including twins, and sometimes is described as the Rockefeller who has taken most interest in Radio City (Rockefeller Center), of which he is a director, and also helped to build up the Museum of Modern Art.

But in Latin America, young Rockefeller had carved out a unique distinction even before he accepted his present post on the Defense Commission. He had gone down to Venezuela in connection with his family's oil companies, and had become impressed with the idea that American business in Latin America had to be more than a leech industry—had to do more than drill wells and suck oil out of the ground.

Furthermore, and particularly in Venezuela, he saw that after that country had exhausted the one commodity upon which it had been so dependent, economic chaos would follow together with the same policy applied in Mexico—expropriation.

Joined With Local Money

So young Rockefeller began working on the idea of diversifying Venezuela's industries and diversifying them on a partnership basis. In other words, instead of merely bringing more American capital to Venezuela, he set up a company in which local money joined with him in building a hotel in Caracas to be operated jointly by American and Venezuelan directors.

This is one of Rockefeller's objectives as coordinator of Latin American affairs on the defense council—namely, to set up corporations in which Latin American capital will mix with American money, in contrast to the old practice of Yankee exploitation with Yankee dollars.

"There is no point," says Rockefeller, "in trying to tug the Latins to our side in a tug of war with the Germans. What we want to do is help them in developing economic independence. They have fought for economic independence before and they can do it again. In that fight, we are with them."

This is a point on which the State Department and Mr. Rockefeller see eye to eye. Actually, the State Department, under the far-sighted Good Neighbor policy devised by Sumner Welles, already had joined U. S. and Brazilian capital to build a new steel mill in Brazil.

Rockefeller Aides

When Bill Knudsen, Edward Stettinius and moguls of the National Defense Commission go to the White House every Thursday to report on defense progress, Nelson Rockefeller goes with them. However, it would take a long stretch of the imagination to bring under "Defense" the full scope of Rockefeller's ambitious plans for closer friendship below the Rio Grande.

To accomplish this, he has brought into his office one of the most diversified groups of experts recently seen in Washington. It includes:

WILL CLAYTON—Of the cotton merchandising firm of Clayton and Anderson, who tangled with AAA crop control in the early New Deal days, turned in disgust to Brazil and has now taught the Brazilians to grow more cotton and gin it better.

JOSEPH C. ROVENSKY—Vice-president of the Chase National Bank and one of the experts on German currency and barter trade, the chief type of competition which the United States faces in South America.

ROBERT G. CALDWELL—Dean of humanities at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; born in Bogota and former minister to Portugal and Bolivia. He will handle Rockefeller's cultural relations.

CARL SPEATH—A classmate of Rockefeller's at Dartmouth, who later handled much of his work in Venezuela and is now his personal assistant.

A. V. CORY—A geologist from Butte, Montana, with active mining experience in Brazil and Argentina.

HENRY A. MOE—Formerly of the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, who will now direct the division of scholarships for Rockefeller, a most important job if there is to be real interchange of students in the Western Hemisphere.

Real Good Neighborliness

The group also includes Treasury Expert Simon G. Hansen; Newsman John Clark, in charge of press relations; George (Ben) Franklin, secretary to Rockefeller; and Arthur Ballantine, Jr., son of the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Many of these men speak Spanish, some even speak Portuguese. They are young, enthusiastic, tireless in their effort to do a real job of good neighborliness in Latin America, and in the end should be able to smooth out friction with the State Department.

Real fact is that the State Department's political policy in Latin America has been the most successfully and judiciously handled in years. But the Department has neither the personnel nor the time to concentrate on commercial and cultural relations as much as the present emergency requires.

So if a harmonious partnership can be worked out with the energetic Rockefeller—a partnership which sometimes is difficult in an administration in which personalities play such a dominant role—then the Good Neighbor policy really should go places in Latin America.

Captains, All!

Until now there have been no acceptable solutions to the embarassing situation created by the appointment of Elliott Roosevelt to a captaincy in the army. In fairness to prospective conscripts, mothers and sisters who want their sons and brothers to have equal rank with Elliott, the following plan is suggested. Abolish the present ranking system—no more privates, corporals, sergeants second or first lieutenants. Start all enlistments at the captaincy grade; thus all privates would become captains; corporals become majors; sergeants, lieutenant-colonels; second looies, colonels; first lieutenants, lieutenant-generals; captains, major-generals, etc.

Since the privates' pay is pretty low anyhow, this program would offer a new field in building up goodwill for the government if the private was started off not only with the captaincy title but with the captaincy pay. Of course many will say this is ridiculous, trying to upset army precedent as to title and pay, precedent that is of cherished memory. But in these days we have learned that precedents are made to be broken, and one more shattering will not upset the old government apple cart. As to almost prohibitive payroll costs we have long ago overcome a desire to understand expenditures in terms of billions of dollars. Anyway it's the people's money going back to the people, particularly the army boys who should be taken care of along with their families for what they offer—their lives—for their country.

Now Elliott started this thing and has sort of put the old man on the spot, but it isn't fair to blame either of them. If I had a chance like that I'd take it, too and so would any of you readers. If fault or blame there is, then it is not the individual—Elliott or FDR—it is the system out of gear. Out-moded if you please. A horse and buggy army system.

I have worried about the unjust criticism of our president and Elliott. Perhaps this inspired a sudden solution to the problem like the above. The more I think of it, the more I believe in its practicality. It will put conscription on an equitable basis and stop these clubs and button wearers wailing that "they want to be a captain, too." Well, let them be captains. Let's bust an old precedent, raise ranks and pay.

I don't want any credit for this idea which is the most original one I ever had. Unselfishly I submit it to the country and to Mr. Roosevelt for whatever value it may be in this, another great emergency.

No Hidden Wealth—

Workmen digging to place a drain for a car-washing rack on Clyde Swafford's Service station lot, Fourth and Osage, thought they had discovered a cache of money. Deep down one of the men found a nickel. But its newness indicated the impossibility of having been buried long. After studying the problem for a time one man arrived at a solution. He had a hole in his pants pocket and it was his own nickel that had dropped through and landed in the excavation while he was digging.

British Meet Worker Fatigue Problem With 10-Minute Rest, New Raid Alarm Technique

Sketch shows how work-hours are saved in England by workers remaining at their tasks until enemy bombers reach 15-mile zone.

By PAUL MANNING
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON—Ten million factory hands working 12 hours a day seven days a week for three months have succeeded in re-equipping the British army with guns, shells, tanks and the other war supplies lost by the B. E. F. in the retreat of Dunkirk.

But 10,000,000 factory hands working seven days a week have contracted work fatigue and now British officials are experimenting for a solution to this wartime problem.

In one munitions factory they recently inaugurated a pause of 10 minutes in the middle of the morning, and immediately the output increased 8 per cent. In another, a rest period of five minutes every hour jumped the production 13 per cent.

But when they increased the rest-pause more than five minutes an hour in a third factory, production slumped slightly because the workers cooled off and took too long to warm back into the routine.

Winter May Aggravate Problem

This whole problem of fatigue has not become sufficiently acute to cause immediate production worries. Yet with workers and employers alike losing their customary vacations at the beaches this summer, the approach of winter is regarded with foreboding by many government officials. So they are now scientifically groping for an answer to the question which remained largely unsolved by either the allies or Germany during the last war years of 1914-18.

Germany, while trying to deliver knockout blows from the air, is struggling with the same problem. In the Junkers factory at Dessau when production was stepped up from 10 to 12 hours a day output slipped 20 per cent. So the workers were divided into four shifts each working six hours a day.

In the two Heinkel factories in Oranienburg and Marienhe north of Berlin, enough skilled workers could not be obtained for the split shift so 12-hour days have been continued with fatigue being avert-by a system of leave from the factory each month.

Recent air raids have caused considerable worry to officials in charge of Britain's production. Germany bombing planes raiding by day force men and women to leave their lathes and benches. And German planes raiding the same area by night force that same shift out of bed into air raid shelters for a considerable loss of sleep.

New Plan Saves Time

So to keep production up in the face of these new German areial onslaughts, factories are now employing an air raid alarm technique patterned after the system used so successfully for two and a half years in the Republican factories at Segunto during the Spanish Civil War.

This will keep British production at a high level despite great air raids. Workers, instead of leaving for the shelters when the raid siren is sounded for the civilians of a town, stay at their benches until men at the observation post atop the factory signal that enemy planes are within sight. Then the workers march to the basement shelter.

Nearly 14 minutes an air raid is saved. When a public alarm sounds German planes are 50 miles or 10 minutes away. When gunfire is heard by the factory observers the bombers are 15 miles or three minutes away and it is at this moment that roof observers flash the "clear out" signal to the factory. Two minutes is the average time for clearing a factory floor.

Slave-Maker Ants

Raids on nests of other ants are made by slave-maker ants. They carry off cocoons of the raided colony and hatch the captives, which then are forced to spend gathering food for their captors.

No Flag of Its Own

Canada has no flag of its own. The Union Jack is flown there, usually with the tricolor when there are French Canadians. A special flag is used by the governor-general.

Record For Motor Vehicles

Dwight H. Brown, secretary of state, announces that motor vehicle registrations in Missouri have reached an all-time high record as of October 1, 1940, of 879,874, compared with 835,314 for the corresponding 1939 period. For this 1940 registration, $10,430,984.00 was collected, or an increase of 5.7 per cent over the nine months in 1939, when $9,831,969.00 was received.

"In other words," continued Secretary Brown, "there is an increase of 44,560 registrations as compared with the same period last year, with the 1939 total registration of 876,557 already surpassed by 3,317."

"As these vehicles are used in all kinds of industry," said Secretary Brown, "I feel it is a true insight into better business conditions in our great state."

From Pettis county a total of 7,940 passenger and truck licenses had been issued up to October 1, as compared with 7,728 for the like 1939 period.

Tyrone Power and Linda Darwell starred in Brigham Young' coming to the Fox Theatre Tuesday for Three Days

Set against the turbulent background of the great Mormon trek in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Brigham Young," coming to the Fox theatre Tuesday, is one of the most appealing love stories the screen has ever told. Tyrone Power is seen as the Mormon scout and lovely Linda Darnell is cast as the young girl who, although not of Mormon faith flees with Tyrone's family after her father is killed in the massacre at Nauvoo. The story of "Brigham Young" was written especially for the screen by the famous Louis Bromfield. Others in the cast include Dean Jagger as Brigham Young, Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, John Larradine, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers and Ann Todd.

AS THE TWIG IS BENT

In some parts of the world where the wind blows from the same direction all the time the trees all lean the same way. Continual pressure will ultimately affect any living structure.

Children and adults may have falls which will slightly change the level of the base of the spine. From that time on the body leans toward the low side, muscles must contract to counteract this makes the muscles sore; it wastes much energy and tires one. Nature can compensate for some of this trouble in time by producing a curve in the opposite direction at the other end of the spine but this is not a normal condition and causes many ailments that the person does not realize is caused from the spine.

Dr. Roy M. Keller

The amount of disturbance depends upon the degree of distortion and the part of the spine it affects.

X-Ray pictures can accurately locate the cause of the trouble and through chiropractic proceedures we can reverse the strain toward the normal and ultimately correct many such distortions.

Chiropractors should be looked upon as the mechanical engineers of the body.

Cary Grant, Irene Dunne in 'The Awful Truth' Now Showing at the Liberty Theatre

Irene Dunne, who unceremoniously cut loose from a career of stately roles to indulge cinematically in wild whimsies and hysterical insanities in "Theodora Goes Wild," will again be seen in an all-comedy role in Columbia's "The Awful Truth." Cary Grant this time serves as Miss Dunne's screen cohort with such favorites in support as Ralph Bellamy, Cecil Cunningham, Alexander D'Arcy, Robert Allen, Joyce Compton and Esther Dale.

Leo McCarey, best remembered for his "Ruggles of Red Gap," directed "The Awful Truth," which Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl" adapted to the screen from the original stage play by Arthur Richman.

Prior to her memorable performance in "Theodora Goes Wild," which won for her an ad man's Winchellesque appelation as "the screen's Theodorable sweetheart," Miss Dunne was the screen's premier dramatic star, an honor deservedly won for her portrayal in "Cimarron," "The Silver Cord," "Magnificent Obsession," and the "Show Boat." During the transition from drama to comedy parts she expressed her versatility in such singing roles as "Roberta" and "Sweet Adeline."

In "The Awful Truth" Miss Dunne is seen as the prim, staid wife of Cary Grant, a bounder of sorts who simply can't get used to marriage ties. He takes an innocent vacation is the guise of a business trip and returns to find his wife has been out all night with a romantic foreign vocal teacher. The car, she explains, broke down and they were forced to spend a night at an inn. Accusations and recriminations fill the air before Mr. and Mrs. decide to separate. In court the only bone of contention proves to be Mr. Smith, the prolific wire-hair terrier, Asta, of "The Thin Man" series. Irene wins custody of the pup but the court allows Cary to visit the dog once a month.

Affairs take their merry course until Cary expresses his intentions of marrying a pretty young thing with a social register background as soon as the divorce is final. Irene then puts Theodora's wild forays to shame with her actions in the climatic scene wherein she tries to impress on Park Avenue that young Cary is not the sort to be marrying wealthy, pretty young things.

Ralph Bellamy enters the scene as an Oklahoman oil tycoon with a yen for Irene. Alexander D'Arcy is the innocent vocal instructor who suffers no little at the hands of the irate Cary while Cecil Cunningham plays the tarta-tongued sophisticated Aunt Patsy.

John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Frances Farmer in 'Flowing Gold' at Uptown Today, Mon. & Tues.

Inset: George Murphy in a scene from "Risky Business."

"Flowing Gold" thrilling saga of life and love in the Texas oil fields opens at the Uptown Theatre today. The highly lauded Warner Bros. film transcription of Rex Beach's immortal novel stars John Garfield, Frances Farmer, and Pat O'Brien.

The new motion picture largely concerns itself with Johnny Blake, John Garfield's role, an iconoclastic young drifter doomed to the life of a fugitive after killing a man in self-defense. In his wanderings about the country he meets up with Hap O'Connor, played by Pat O'Brien. Hap's rough exterior hides a heart of gold, and he is extremely grateful to Johnny after the latter saves his life in a free-for-all brawl.

Complications arise when both men fall in love with the beautiful and vibrant Linda Chalmers, played by Frances Farmer, daughter of their eccentric employer. The pair save her oil wells from the machinations of a conniving rival and manage to capture flowing gold—the rich black Texas oil.

West coast critics are unanimous in their praise of "Flowing Gold," referring to it as one of the most exciting action-dramas of the year. They were particularly impressed with the performances of John Garfield an Pat O'Brien as the honest, rugge oil men. Much space was also devoted to mention of beautiful Frances Farmer's flawless portrayal after a toc-long absence on the New York stage.

In addition to its three dynamic stars, "Flowing Gold" features such well-known supporting players as Raymond Walburn, Cilff Edwards, Tom Kennedy, the late Granville Bates, Jody Gilbert, William Marshall, Sol Gorss, Virginia Gale, and John Alexander. Alfred Green directed from a screen play by Kenneth Gamet based on the Rex Beach novel.

Democratic Colombia Clamps Down On Foreign Propaganists, Buries 'Scada Threat' to Panama Canal

Crowds in Barranquilla, Colombia, listening to news broadcasts of the blitzkrieg over Britain.

This is another article from Professor Wenner, Cleveland College international affairs expert, who is on tour of the Caribbean area and writing exclusively for NEA Service and the Democrat-Capital.

By THOMAS J. B. WENNER
NEA Service Special Corre spondent

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia,—Large crowds gather every night in the streets of Colombian cities before radio stations, listening for latest news of the blitzkrieg over Britain. It is plain that the sympathies of a great majority are with Britain.

Most Americanized, and one of the most democratic of South American countries, Colombia can probably be counted on to bolster plans for western hemisphere political cooperation and defense.

A national registration of more than 5000 foreigners in Colombia has just been completed. The Colombian government is taking no chances with foreign influences. The census of foreigners includes information as to their occupation, and whether they are still following the occupations they listed at the time of their entry.

Since 1924, foreigners have been required by law to renew their "cedulas" or identification cards every three years. Many have failed to do so, and fines are now being imposed. The government is particularly anxious to "have a record of occupations of foreigners." It seems most intent on keeping their activities under complete control.

Propagandists Curbed by Radio

Nazis, Fascists and Communists are denied radio broadcasting facilities for propaganda purposes, and political speeches sharply critical of the present government are frowned upon. Otherwise radio broadcasts are quite free.

"We wish to avoid commentators leaning toward either side in the European war," broadcasting executives explain. "No scripts are required in advance, though copies of spoken broadcasts must be kept on file."

Some studios here in the north, and also in the capital, Bogota, are accused of "German coloring" of the news. But officials of those stations deny it, asserting that absolute neutrality is their policy. As evidence, they cite the wide variety of press services from which they draw their news; Reuter's (English), Transocean (German), Havas (until recently French) and the American press associations.

President Eduardo Santos has taken the lead in urging citizens to maintain a neutral attitude in line with the government's official policy.

There are some 90 broadcasting stations in the republic, and executives here in Barranquilla are proud of their newly installed long-wave antennae and studio transmitters; they are prouder still of letters from listeners in the United States. "Radio can become the most powerful instrument of all for cementing Pan American ties if handled properly," these radio men say.

Tired of Scadta Talk

Government officials are irritated at reports that in the United States "the Scadta issue is still being kicked around." They believe any menace this German-sponsored line might be to the Panama Canal has been completely liquidated. Here are the facts of the Scadta case, on the basis of which Colombian authorities would like to se the whole thing dropped and forgotten:

Private German capital came into Colombia after the World War, found a country dependent on slow water and undependable rail transport, and decided to utilize war pilots to start a commercial airways business.

Thus started the first commercial airline in South America. Formed in 1920, the company was called the Sociedad Colombiana Alemana de Transportes Aeros (Scadta). The line prospered. Passenger and freight schedules reached out to all the principal Colombian cities, and connected with Ecudar and Panama.

Six years ago Pan American bought the controlling stock of Scadta, but left German managers and pilots in charge.

When war threatened in Europe, Colombia became anxious for better control over airlines. It passed laws requiring Colombian pilots, mechanics and office staffs. The Germans largely disregarded the warning, and Pan American brought no pressure, since the lines were doing well. But when war actually broke, the Colombian government grew serious. Pan American and the Colombian government bought out Scadta, which became Avianca. It was a fair deal, and most of the remaining German stockholders did not object.

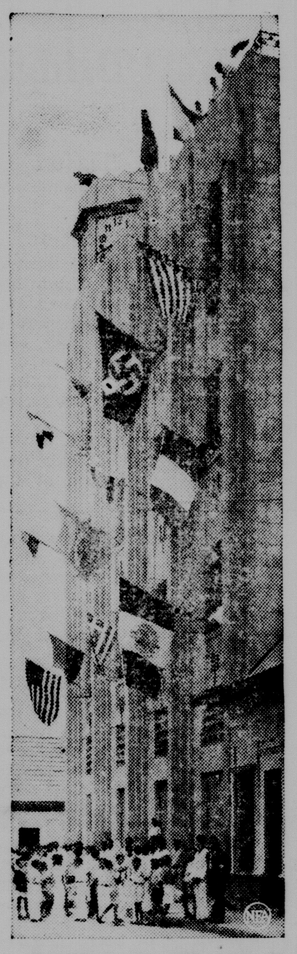

No Germans Over Panama

Today Pan American owns considerably more than 50 per cent of the stock of Avianca. The remainder belongs to the Colombian government and Colombian citizens. The government has an option to buy Pan American's stock, but is not expected to exercise it.

No German pilots are flying over Panama or Colombia. All German employes of the former Scadta line have been dismissed, save a few office workers. Pilots, mechanics, and operators personnel of German citizenship have been let out, though some have remained in the country. Seventeen pilots and their families recently returned to Germany.

Four airlines now operate in Colombia: Pan American, Royal Dutch Airlines, Avianca, and a local company for interior transport, UNCA.

The real threat, Colombian officials feel, is internal depression and decreased export markets due to the war. This means decreased purchasing power for the Colombian masses, and any real threat to American interests lies here—not in any air-transport menace to the Panama Canal.

Swastikas are still seen in Colombia—but "only very occasionally now," citizens tell you.

Six Easy Steps Take Conscripts of 21-35 From Civies to Army Life

REGISTRATION—All men 21 to 35, inclusive, register for conscription at designated place Oct. 16. Each receives identification card that certifies he has registered.

SELECTION—Registration cards are shuffled, numbered. At Washington lottery, the President draws capsules from draft bowl. Numbers in these determine order of calling draftees.

INTERROGATION—Local draft board sends questionnaires to men whose numbers are called, aids them in filling these out. Query sheets must be returned within five days.

DEFERMENT—Board weighs each questionnaire, to decide if man is eligible for deferment because he does work vital to defense or has dependents. Special boards will hear appeals.

EXAMINATION—If draftee is not deferred, he is given physical examination to see if he is fit for active duty. Conscripts must have good teeth, good eyes, general good health.

ENLISTMENT—Men passing tests will be called for active service about Nov. 15. They will be assigned to camps, given a year's basic training. Thus the citizen becomes a soldier.

Many Factors Determine Call Under Conscription

on dependency, income and physical condition will be confidential.

Questionnaires Be Examined

Several answers require supporting affidavits. The registrant must swear to or affirm the entire form. Local boards will welcome any additional written evidence the registrant may attach. A local registrant advisory board of three lawyers and associate members will help anyone who applies.

Each questionnaire will be examined by the board when it is returned and the registrant will be placed tentatively in one of four classes.

Class 1—Available for service.

Class 2—Deferred because of occupational status.

Class 3—Deferred because of pendents.

Class 4—Deferred specifically by law or because unfit for military service.

With certain exceptions, there will be no group exemptions of entire occupations and industries such as the shipyards classification which caused a scandal in 1917. The exceptions will include college students working for degrees, who will be deferred until next July 1, members of the land or naval forces, certain government officials, aliens who have not applied for citizenship, clergymen, divinity students, conscientious objectors, habitual criminals, felons, soldiers, sailors and marines discharged unfavorably.

Deferment On Merits

Each case of deferment will be decided by the local board on its own merits. A man's importance to his job, no matter whether the job if blending perfume or milling gunpowder, will be the main consideration in occupational deferments. Getting a job in a so-called "defense industry" won't help.

The regulations say that the boards shall defer "any registrant found to be a 'necessary man' in any industry, business, employment, agricultural pursuit, governmental service or endeavor, or in training and preparation therefor, the maintenance of which is necessary to the national health. Safety and interest in the sense that it is useful or productive and contributes to the employment or well being of the community or the nation." In deciding who is "necessary," however, the boards are advised to consider national defense, too.

Deferment, nevertheless, will be only for the purpose of allowing a man to be replaced if and as soon as he can. Continued neglect or refusal to replace a man might result in his being called anyway. At least every six months each deferred man's case will be reviewed, and deferment will end when the causes for it cease to exist.

Each state will have one or more army or navy officers as advisors on occupational deferments and for every 70,000 of population there will be a group of local advisors.

Although there will be no group exemptions, the question of replacement obviously will not arise for the unemployed, the idle rich, WPA workers without dependents, and those whom one official calls "racketeers," loan sharks, drugstore cowboys, pool room hangers on, bar flies, etc."

While the law requires that every man placed in class 3 shall have relatives or foster children actually dependent upon his earned income, regulations advise local boards to show "sympathetic regard" in filling class E.

Sympathetic Attitude

"Any reasonable doubts in connection with dependency should be resolved in favor of deferment, and in doubtful cases the local boards should be mindful of injuries which may be expected to result from separating a father from his children or a husband from his wife."

Those in class 4 will include men with certain previous service in the land forces, certain officials, non-declarant aliens, clergymen and divinity students, conscientious objectors available only for civilian work, and those physically, mentally or morally unfit.

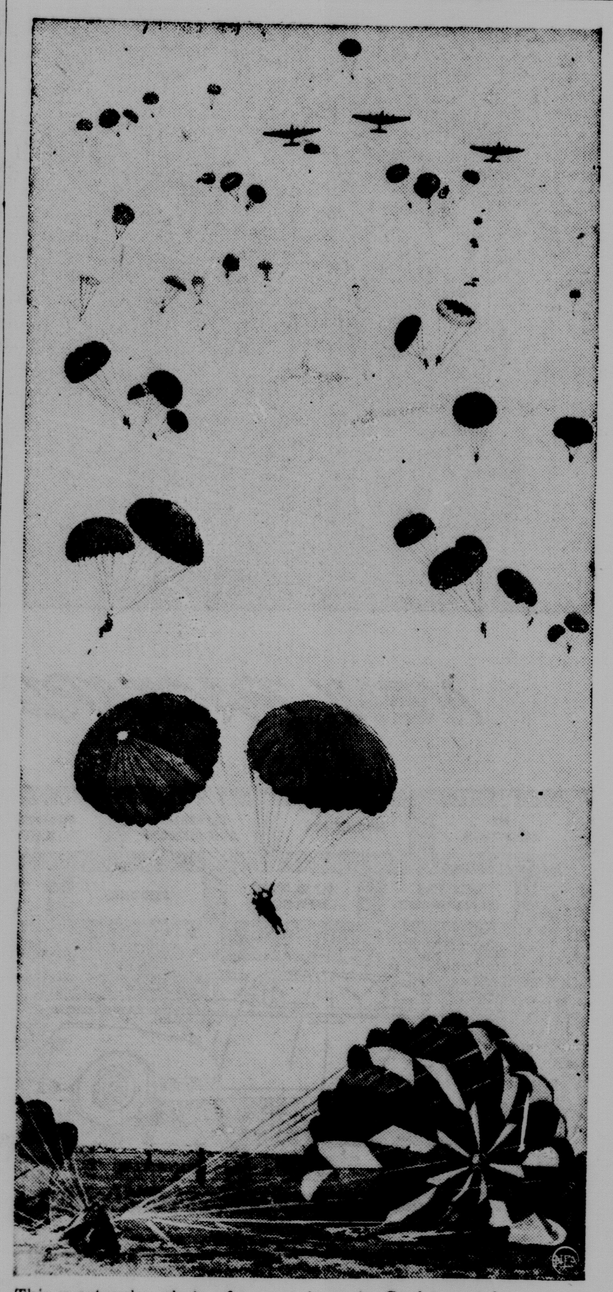

A sympathetic attitude has been promised towards men with religious training or belief as conscientious objectors. Any objector whose claim is denied by a local board may get a hearing by the department of justice, but the department's findings do not bind the local board.

Each registrant will be notified of his classification. He, in turn, must notify the board if his status changes so as to affect his classification. Those tentatively placed in class 1 will be called for a physical examination. They will be notified of the results. Those with defects will be re-classified in class 4. A medical board of specialists will consult in doubtful cases. Class 1 will include temporarily deferred students and those who volunteered without waiting for the draft.)

It is the duty of each registrant to see that he receives his classification and examination notices. He or anyone claiming to be a dependent may appeal from a class 1 classification. Appeal boards of citizens representing all community interests will be set up for each 70,000 registrants. Government appeal agents attached to each local board or the state and national selective service directors also may appeal to protect the government's interests.

No man should pay anyone for handling his appeal, helping him answer his questionnaire or attesting his signature. The system provides ample free assistance He may attach additional papers to his record for consideration by the appeal board, but neither he nor anyone else can appear before the board, though personal appearances before local boards are permitted. Final appeal to the president is remotely possible under stated conditions.

No physician or board member can pass on the classification of a near relative or business associate.

This spectacular photo of a mass jump by Soviet parachute troops was taken during the recent celebration of Aviation Day at Tushino, near Moscow. First to introduce this technique in modern warfare, the Russians are still developing it, following Germany's effective use of 'chute troops. Note that many jumpers are using twin parachutes, possibly to permit carrying heavier armament or additional equipment.

Bullet Through A Window Of Home

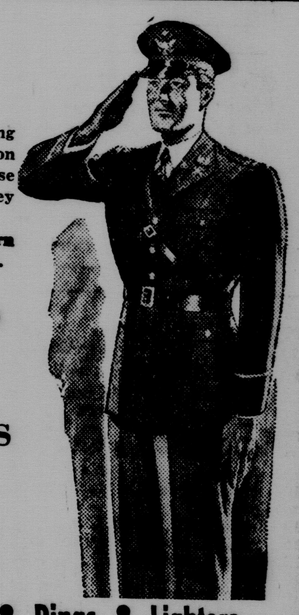

Mrs. G. W Robb, 3501 South Washington avenue, was startled Friday afternoon when she found a .22 caliber bullet in a room of her home. Investigating further she found a hole in the window, through which the bullet had entered.

The matter was reported to Sheriff W. L Marlin, who is of the opinion that a hunter, probably walking along the railroad tracks, or in that vicinity, fired a shot, which entered the home. The gun may haye been fired at a considerable distance, the sheriff stated, but he desires to warn hunters to be careful. Not only is there danger of injuring some one, but such carelessness is liable to prosecution, he states.

According to army experts, the smaller fighting planes cost about $5000 apiece.

"We arm to defend ourselves," the President said. "The strongest reason for that is that it is the strongest guarantee for peace.

"The United States of America is mustering its men and resources arming not only to defend itself, but, in cooperation with the other American republics, to help defend the whole hemisphere.

"We are building a total defense on land and sea and in the air, sufficient to repel total attack from any part of the world. Edward B. Lyon Edward B. Lyon, a former Sedalian, died Saturday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, Kansas City, which city had been his home since leaving Sedalia in 1918.

Mr. Lyon, with Mrs. Lyon, had gone to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Clyde Moulin and Mr. Moulin, in Chicago, to observe their golden wedding anniversary September 21. Mrs. Moulin, the former Velma Lyon, brought them back to Kansas City last Tuesday in her car. Mr. Lyon became ill that evening and was taken to the hospital.

For a considerable number of years he conducted a recreation parlor on East Third street in Sedalia before moving to Kansas City to make his home.

Vote to Join Church Council

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Protestant Episcopal church took its first favorable action toward affiliation with the Federal Council of Churches today after deliberating the question 20 years.

Reversing its previous adamant stand from the post world war period, the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies voted, 95¼ to 41½ for full membership. Heretofore Episcopalians have cooperated with the council only in a consultative capacity.

The measure now goes to the church's House of Bishops for final action. Delegates predicted quick concurrence.

Today's vote came after an hour's debate on a resolution by the Rev. A. R. Parshley, Bristol, R. I.

Mr. Parshley termed the council "the only agency of effective cooperation in existence today" and said it represented 20,000,000 Christians in America.

Anson T. McCook, Hartford, Conn., lay delegate, contended membership would bind the church to support the council even though Episcopalians may be opposed to parts of the council's program.

But the Rev. Gardiner Day, Bethlehem, Pa., viewed membership as "an approach to unity," adding:

"A divided church can have little effect in a troubled world. More and more people are saying they are not interested in denominationalism."

The Rev. Charles E. McAllister of Spokane pointed out only one other Protestant church — the Southern Baptist—now remained outside the council.

The Catholic church is not affiliated with the council.

Three Die in A Mystery Wreck

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Three persons, or more, were killed tonight and many injured in the mysterious wreck of a London-bound express which railway workers thought was caused by a bomb.

There was some doubt, however, as to whether the express— speeding toward London in the blackout—had in fact been hit by a Nazi bomb or had been wrecked by something else.

One possibility discussed was that some such implement as a wheelbarrow had pitched from a loading platform and become entangled in the wheels of the engine.

Porters at a nearby station said they heard a loud screech followed by a crash that "sounded just like a bomb." Air raid wardens and demolition squads were the first rescue workers to arrive at the scene of the wreck.

The express was enroute from Liverpool to Euston Station, London.

BORN TO WORK

NO SILVER SPOON IN HIS MOUTH

SOMEWHERE, along the road we're all traveling, Wendell Willkie has lived your life and dreamed your dreams.

He has done the things that you have done. He wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Willkie was born to work. He had only his hands, his heart and his head. And with them he worked his own way to the top.

He wants for America just the same things that you want. He has proved, on every job, his ability to get the job done.

* * *

In an hour of need, America has always come forward with a man of strength and vision—a man who can see a complex problem simply, and has the God-given sense to find a simple answer.

That is Wendell Willkie.

He is ready and prepared. Life has fitted him for the job ahead.

Wendell Willkie is with, for and of the people.

He did not initiate the "Willkie-for-President" movement. In all truth, a great destiny sought him. His nomination was the people's doing, not his.

The cry for Willkie comes from deep in America's heart. We invite you, Americans, to join in support of a man who will keep America as we want it to be—free of dictatorships—safe, secure, prosperous for all who are here today—and for our children who will come after us.

An American President in the Making

—Wendell Willkie was born in Elwood, Indiana, a small Middle West city, in 1892.

—He is one of six children, and studied in the Elwood grade and high schools. He worked his way through college—Indiana University.

—During summer vacations he worked—at all kinds of jobs: He was a barker for a tent hotel in South Dakota—a migrant laborer in California—a harvest hand in Minnesota—a laborer in the oil fields of Texas.

—Graduated from college, he went to Coffeyville, Kansas, where he taught school for a year—and likewise coached the high school track team.

—He then went to law school in Indiana and was graduated with high honors. He was admitted to the bar, went back to Elwood to practice law with his father.

—On the day the United States declared war he enlisted—soon thereafter married Edith Wilk, who was employed in the Elwood Public Library.

—He served in France with the AEF—and came home a captain of field artillery.

—He practiced law in Elwood, then in Akron, Ohio. There, later, his record led to employment by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

—In Akron he became a partner in the firm of Mather & Nesbitt and had his first experience in the affairs of public utilities.

—His success here gained the attention of executives of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. In 1933 he was made president of this business.

—He owns five farms and operates them at a profit.

—Immediately following his nomination for the Presidency of the United States, he resigned the presidency of Commonwealth and Southern and also his directorships in eight other corporations—as a matter of good public policy. But he still owns and operates his farms.

Osage Chapter DAR Observes Anniversary

Pretty Party Friday Afternoon At the Lodge

Bothwell's Lodge was the scene of a most delightful celebration given by the Osage Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the National Society at Washington, D. C. It was through the courtesy of Mrs. Charles E. Yeater, a member of the chapter, that the ladies of this society were privileged to meet there. The assisting hostesses were Miss Nina Harris and Mesdames E. F. Yancey, W. H. Powell, J. C. Saunders and D. T. Abell.

The large group of 46 members and guests appreciated the joy of being entertained at this lovely place, for their auspicious occasion.

The business session was presided over by the Regent, Mrs. Frank S. Leach and plans were made for the activities of the chapter. Mrs. Foster C. Scotten, chairman for the department of the Junior American Citizens, gave a glowing report of this interesting patriotic work among the youth in our city and county schools. With the fine cooperation of Heber Hunt, superintendent of the city schools and C. E. Scotten, superintendent of the county schools, this work is going forward with fine results. The first county school to be organized into a patriotic unit is the John Bothwell school, located near Bothwell Lodge, the teacher being Mrs. A. B. Burke and the students 100 per cent have now, a most enthusiastic unit with officers and plans for study and recreation. Mrs. Scotten and her committee are doing valiant work and plan to organize many more units that patriotism may be taught to the youth of this county. Her committee is as follows: Mesdames J. C. Campbell, Edgar Arnold, C. D. Osborne, E. W. Kettlesen, Glenn Warren and Miss Lelia Shortridge.

Announcement was made of the State Golden Jubilee convention to be held October 22 to 24 at Springfield, Mo. Miss Lelia Shortridge presented to the chapter, on behalf of Mrs. A. L. Shortridge, who was absent, an old document of historic value showing pictures of all of the presidents up to President Polk, and containing much reading matter of interest. This document will be placed in the Osage Chapter Room at Arrow Rock Tavern. Mrs. George Bichsel is the chairman for the Tavern.

Mrs. E. F. Yancey, music chairman, presented her musical program of old familiar songs, following which Miss Harriett Guild, speaker of the day, gave a concise and fine address on the "Founding and Founders of the D. A. R." Fifty years ago on the eleventh of October, 1890, little did these 18 women, think that from this small beginning would grow an organization of patriotic women of 150,000 members today, and with branch chapters in many countries of the world.

Miss Guild's address was full of historic incidents, wit and humor, characteristic of this talented lady. Her hearers were so pleased with this effort that it was suggested that this paper be filled with the Washington Bureau, so that other chapters might enjoy it. Miss Guild dealt with the struggles of the early women founders in their endeavor to establish this wonderful organization commemorating the founding of "America, the Land of the Free and Home of the Brave." Through their sacrifice of time and money, the result today is that of which all may be proud.

Senator Sherman once said: "The women might not have done the fighting, but they kept and tended the farms, raised the crops and fed the Continental army, spun the yarn and wove the cloth for patriotic soldiers and kept the country alive." Miss Guild told stories of Mollie Pitcher, Debora Sampson, the "Women of Pepperrill Bridge" and others who were the inspiration for the founders in perpetuating the heroism of early American women. Miss Guild gave an account of Hannah Arnett's courage and bravery in standing defiantly against the oppression of the mother country and for the support of George Washington in the great fight for the liberty of the young nation.

After many fascisitudes the founders led by Mrs. Mary Lockwood of Washington and other loyal women, founded the Daughters of the American Revolution with Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the president of the United States, as the first president, she being unanimously elected to that office. The blue and white of Washington's staff were chosen as their national colors and the motto "Home and Country" was officially adopted. Today the lasting monuments of the D. A. R., Meorial Centennial Hall and Constitutional Hall, in Washington, two of the most beautiful and stately buildings in this country, are among the testimonials of the marvelous growth of this patriotic society.

Miss Guild gave a brief story and biography of several of the earliest founders and she described the reception that was given by Mrs. May Virginia Ellet Cabell, first vice president, at her home in Washington. Music, speeches and the patriotic spirit prevailed, and it was said that even for Washington the capitol city, the affair was magnificent and of vast social importance, especially as the movement was headed by the president's wife. It was decided that only women whose ancestry dated back to the Revolutionary war could be members, thus keeping a strain of patriotism unbroken. Miss Guild was much complimented upon her fine paper.

Out-of-town guests were Mesdames Marshall Rust, Gut Long, C. M. Shepherd and W. S. Barnes, who motored down from Pilot Grove as special guests of the chapter; Mrs. George Melton, of Miami, Fla., guest of the regent, Mrs. Leach; Mrs. Allender Jones of Greensboro, S. C., guest of her mother, Mrs. G. A. Sturges and Miss Lucy Bothwell, guest of Mrs. Yeater.

The guests were all invited out of doors, where, on the east balcony, refreshments were served from a lovely appointed table at which Mesdames Abell and Powell poured. The view from the balcony was magnificent. The October colors were painted into a scene of beauty unsurpassed.

Missouri Defeats Kansas State

Again Its Christman Hurling The Tigers To A 24-13 Victory

Eleven Thousand See Missouri Win First Game at Manhattan Since Fall 1928

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

MANHATTAN, Kas., Oct. 12—(AP)—Paul Christman stood out on Ahearn field as limp as a chunk of damp toast today and hurled Missouri to a 24 to 13 triumph over Kansas State in a Big Six football game.

The blond Tiger was directly responsible for three of the touchdowns his mates, defending champions, manufactured and his performance almost made even the Kansas State adherents forget the twisting 80-yard dash Chris Langvardt made for the first Wildcat touchdown.

Christman had bad luck most of the way with his receivers. Often during the first half he overshot his mark but two losses were gathered in during the first period that sent Bob Steuber, a budding sophomore end, across the line.

Typical of the difficulties the Tiger marksman had with his receivers came in the second period. He put a 35-yard aerial directly in the arms of Ralph Carter, standing alone on the 10 but the youngster dropped it.

Christman nonchalantly directed Carter to the other side of the field on the next play and repeated the performance, Carter this time holding it. But his effort in the last period was spectacular.

Making one of his seven plunges into the line he found himself trapped. A peek over his left shoulder disclosed Bill Cunningham lurking in the rear. A sudden shove sent the pellet into the fullback's armes headed for the goal line.

Al Niemoller, a substitute Wildcat linesman, made possible the Wildcat opening score by bunting the Missouri safety out of Langvardt's way on the 15-yard line. A Bill Quick to Wally Swanson aerial, good for 19 yards, brought the second Kansas State tally.

Steuber scampered 10 yards around his own right flank on an end around play for the other Missouri touchdown after intercepting one of Kent Duwe's passes. For the day Christman passed 23 times and completed nine for 134 yards. One of his tosses was intercepted. Despite a bad leg which for a time made his starting doubtful, he smacked the Wildcat line seven times for an average gain of two yards. His three punts totalled 100 yards.

Harry Ice, a Missouri sophomore, displayed some tricky running when he replaced Christman, and Bill Quick, a Kansas State newcomer, stood out in the lineup Hobbs Adams fielded in his debut as the Wildcat coach.

One of Quick's punts went 72 yards and set the stage for the second Wildcat tally.

Approximately 11,000 shirt sleeved fans saw Missouri win its first game in Manhattan since 1928.

Petroleum Production

In 1939, the world produced an all-time high of 2,150,000,000 barrels of petroleum and related fuels. Military purposes consumed 150,000,000 barrels of this total, with the balance going into civil consumption.

Southern Methodist Pitt Into Deadlock

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12—(AP)—Outplayed at every turn, Southern Methodists favored Mustangs flashed their famed aerial wizardry in the fourth period to deadlock Pitt 7-7 in an intersectional football battle before 39,000 today.

Trailing 7-0 and showing little defensive punch early in the fray, the Southwestern conference title aspirants took the ball on their 41 and Ray Mallouf heaved to Bob Baccus on the 34 as the final stanza opened.

Johnny Clement picked up a yard and then Mallouf pitched a 33-yard aerial to substitute Bill Thomas for the touchdown, Thomas booting the extra point.

Field Judge Jack Roach was knocked down as the players charged down the field after Johnston's long kick and broke his arm. He left the game.

Nebraska Plays Two Teams Against Indiana

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 12—(AP)—Herman Rohrig and Harry Hopp, a pair of passers who thrived in the 80-degree temperature, helped Nebraska to a 13 to 7 victory today over an Indiana football team that stumbled around in the first half, but came back to just miss a possible win.

Midway in the first period, Rohrig passed to Ray Prochaska, who took the ball on the Indiana 12 after it had bounced off the finger tips of K. Smith and W. White. Two plays later Rohrig passed down the middle with Prochaska catching the ball on the one and stepping over.

Nebraska ran in an entire new team at the start of the second period, replacing Rohrig with Hopp, whose pitching accuracy, too, brought the second Husker score.

Cornell Blitzkrieg's Army With A 45-0 Score

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—A colossal Cornell football team, full of drives and savvy, handed army the most colossal licking in 51 years of cadet gridiron history this afternoon.

The big red team from Ithaca scored in every period, piled up seven touchdowns accredited to seven different men, and wound up on the very large end of a 45-0 score.

It bettered by 26 points the previous high for an army shutout, set by Harvard in 1900, and by 10 points the previous high score run on army, 36-4 by the Princeton team of 1893.

Oklahoma Bows 16-19 To Texas

For Forty Years These Teams Are Rivals; A Jacobs-Crain Duel

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 12—(AP)—Cowboy Jack Crain clattered down shadow-swept sidelines when all seemed lost today to pull University of Texas through to a dramatic, 19-16 triumph over numbed Oklahoma.

Forced to their knees at the outset by bronzed Jack Jacobs, a Creek Indian brave and a football player if one ever suited out, Texas finally grabbed Crain's coattails and a vital break to pull it out of the fire before 35,000 screaming fans.

The two Jacks—Crain and Jacobs—dueled all afternoon in an offensive show that made this game far and away the tingler of the 40-year rivalry of the neighboring state schools.

Ironically, a grand player and the steadiest man on the Oklahoma club, gave Texas the final chance at victory. Deep in the fourth period, with Oklahoma backed down to its 23 yard stripe, the veteran center, Cliff Speegle, bobbled his snapback to Jacobs for a fourth down kick and it skittered between his legs.

The Texans swarmed in on Jacobs on the Sooner 17 and took possession. Five yards from a defensive holding penalty pushed them closer to the goal and then Crain swung out deep around his left end and headed for the flag and the winning touchdown.

Just as the third period ended, Crain revived his lagging Texans with a typical Crain dash—a 68-yard chunk of magic through the Oklahoma team after bagging a lateral.

The Sooners had just tacked on two points when the Texas center, Glenn Jackson, shot his snapback over fullback Pete Layden's head in the end zone for a safety.

It looked like Jacobs and Oklahoma had won a ball game in the third period when they bounced right back from the great break on the Texas safety, to score with lightning aerial thrusts.

Then came Crain, and the deluge.

Columbia Lions Tear Dartmouth To Pieces

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 12—(AP)—A Dartmouth Indian who definitely "ain't what he used to be," was a soft touch for Columbia's footballers today and the Lions, featuring a neat ground game and a sophomore running ace, rolled to an easy 20-6 victory before some 10,000 fans.

Paul Governalli, Columbia sophomore, showed the way, ably aided and abetted by seniors Les Stanczyk and Stew McIlvennan in the backfield and Don Snavely and Felix DeMartini in the line.

Governali took the kickoff standing on his own 26. He cut to the left side line, side-stepped two tacklers, picked up a quorum of blockers about midfield and then just waltzed down for a 74-yard touchdown gallop. Len (sure-toe) Will placekicked the point.

In 1939 motor trucks paid federal and state gasoline taxes amounting to $270,679,591.

Most of us football fans are interested in Maryville Teachers, Warrensburg Teachers, and the Rolla School of Mines because a great many Sedalia boys and girls attend the three institutions. It took the "Miners" to upset a wonderful football record of Maryville last Friday night and when they upset anything they evidently do a good job of "picking."

Looking back over the Maryville grid history these three years and a part of another, we find the Miners were the last football players to beat the Maryville team, and then they came back to be the first to break their winning streak.

Of course the Maryville aggregation are heart sick over their defeat, but they shouldn't expect to be superior forever.

Now a teacher or two up at Smith-Cotton are rather down in the "dumps" over the Warrensburg Teachers and the Cape Girardeau game. As it was Cape bowed, and bowed low to the Warrensburg club. This rather "gripes" the Cape supporters, but we followers of Warrensburg are satisfied.

These past few weeks I have been asked by many youngsters if the Democrat-Capital would sponsor the Golden Gloves again this year. The question is still debatable, inasmuch as interest last year was such that it appeared Sedalians as a whole were uninterested. I might add the material for boxers was rather slim in the '39-'40 season as to Sedalia boys, while the district finally came through with a nice bunch of boxers.

The only way I can determine whether or not there will be amateur boxing here this season is from information given to the Sports Department of this newspaper. If anyone is interested, I request them to drop a line to the Sports Department, but please sign your name.

Golden Gloves is a costly sporting luxury. The public cannot conceive the expense it takes to train a boxing team, the expense to produce trial bouts, and the expense of a tournament. These expenses are small compared to the taking to Kansas City a team for three days, and especially to take the boys there and give them the best of everything, which they are entitled to if they battle their way to the district honors.

Again I ask your co-operation by writing letters to this newspaper, so we can determine just how many central Missourians and Sedalians are really honest in wanting this sport to return to the city this winter.

Well, the Smith-Cotton Tigers, have another game under their belt. The team played well, much improved over the Bolivar contest, and far superior over their playing as against the Marshall Owls.

Coach Joe Benson discussing the team, was thrilled over their action Friday night, "BUT" he said, "they still have work, and lots of it to do before they are up to my expectations." Many may think he is demanding too much, but to listen to his explanations, I for one, can see his point, and I know the football boys likewise will see it, when he gets them gathered around in the family circle.

But credit is due and these boys,every one, not just one, but all, for the way they performed against St. Peters. Their blocking was very good, their pass defense was fairly good, and everything went along like a clock, but their line work was not up to what one might say was perfect as yet.

This week will find the Tigers working like — well everything—to get down the finer points which Benson is going to demand. They think they have worked, but they will find their work has just begun.

Power to every one of you Tigers, and here's hoping you can scalp the Indians of Missouri Military Academy of Mexico, Mo., on the Liberty park gridiron Friday night.

Kansas State's Two-Mile Team Defeats M. U. 20-15

MANHATTAN, Kas., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Kansas State's two-mile team opened its campaign for a fifth consecutive Big Six title today by downing Missouri, 20 to 15 between halves of the Kansas State-Missouri football game.

Thain High, captain of the K-State team, won with William Lane, Missouri sophomore, second. The time was 10.03.5. The others finished Rayl (M), McLellan (KS), Kelley (KS), Bortwick (KS).

Ray Rayl, who placed for Missouri, formerly attended Smith-Cotton high school and was the Central Missouri Conference champion miler.

St. Peters Is Beaten By Tigers 20-0

Myers and Scott Do The Scoring; Game A Sparkling Affair

Smith-Cotton's Tigers Friday night upset dope in high school football by defeating the St. Peter's High school of Jefferson City 20 to 0 on the Liberty Park gridiron. All dope pointed to a Jefferson City victory until the first seven minutes of play and the Tigers tore into the visitors and clawed their way for first blood.

After an exchange of the ball twice the Tigers took it on their 42-yard line and on three plays put it on St. Peters 36 yard line. Jimmy Myers on a spinner off left tackle play shot through the visitors line, their second line defense and went the distance for a touchdown. Randall Scott missed the place kick for the extra point.

In this play some beautiful interference was put up by the Tigers who scattered the visiting gridmen about the field by their perfect blocking.

Fans were brought to their feet and held breathless in the second quarter when, what appeared to be a touchdown after Bob Woratzeck of St. Peters ran ninety yards to his goal after intercepting a pass of Leland Thomas, the ball was called back because both teams were offsides.

Woratzeck was in the "right spot" when a pass intended for a Tigerman was put right into his arms. He side-stepped, dodged, went spinning and got into the open and tore down to the goal line ninety-yards away. The whistle of Fred Yeager had blown almost before Thomas had "flipped" the ball calling the play off.

Five line drive plays put the ball on the 1-yard line and Scott rushed it through center for the score. Myers made a successful place kick for the extra point.

At the opening of the second half St. Peters kicked to Smith-Cotton who took the ball on their 45-yard line. Two end runs by Leland Thomas netted 23-yards. Then two passes Leland Thomas to Jimmy Myers netted a 21-yard gain and 12 yard gain. Five plays later they scored.

Central College Defeats Tarkio

TARKIO, Mo., Oct. 12—(AP)—Central college made a safety in the first period and scored touchdowns in each of the last three periods to defeat Tarkio college 21 to 0 in a homecoming game today.

Central's safety was counted when Central fumbled the ball on Tarkio's two yard line and Lewis of Tarkio caught the ball behind his goal line.

The other scoring was as follows: Teel passed to Winters for a touchdown in the second; Teel passed to Miller for a touchdown in the third after intercepting an Owl pass on Tarkio's 25-yard line. Smithey intercepted a Tarkio pass on Tarkio's 20 yard strike in the fourth period and ran over the goal line.

ELSAH, Ill., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Wentworth Military Academy Red Dragons pinned a 26 to 0 defeat on an outweighed but game Principia college eleven in a non-conference contest here today.

Wentworth, registering its third victory, scored in every quarter except the second.

Kansas Romps To Victory Over Drake

Expected Even Match Ends With Kansas Winning by 20 to

BY BOB BUSBY

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 12—(AP)—The University of Kansas Jayhawkers, expected to match Drake university's vaunted aerial attack toss for toss, kept their feet on the ground and romped to a 20 to 6 victory over the Bulldogs today.

It was the first Jayhawker victory of the season as 8,000 fans sweltered in the warm sunshine. The loss was Drake's first in three starts.

From the outset, Kansas thrust at the big Bulldog lineup with telling effect. It took only five plays for the Jayhawkers to hang up their first counter.

Drake took to the air 27 times with Gene Moore and Harold Anderson as tossers and connected ten times for 88 yards. The air game bogged at vital points however, and six interceptions by Kansas, one for a touchdown further deflated Bulldog hopes. Drake's most effective plays of the game were neatly executed shovel passes involving Perry Harris and Herman Harvey.

Kansas attempted 11 passes and completed four for 23 yards.

Jake Fry and Ed Hall sliced the tackles to shreds on the Jayhawker's opening drive from the Drake 36. Fry went over standing up from the seven yard stripe. Hall's attempted kick failed.

The Bulldogs bounced right back to score. Todd Switzer recovered a fumble on the K. U. 45, and carried the ball five times out of eight plays, going over from the one foot mark. His attempted placement failed.

The Jayhawkers revived their ground attack, climaxed by sophomore Don Pollom's 33-yard sweep around left end and his 12-yard jaunt off tackle to score.

Chet Gibbens, stocky K. U. halfback, drop-kicked the extra point, the ball caroming off a Drake lineman's helmet to go over the crossbar.

The third quarter was just under way when Ed Suagee, pudgy K. U. fullback, grabbed Moore's toss on the 50 and rolled down the side line behind good blocking to score. Hall placekicked the point.

The fourth period was duller than a 10-cent paring knife.

Top: Leland Thomas shirting around right end for twelve yards to set up the next play when Jimmy Myers took the ball on the 36-yard line and scored. Notice the interference being run, Randall Scott on the ground while Landers is coming along side of Thomas to take No. 14, Woratzeck. Center:—It's Thomas again carrying the ball over towards left end and tackle and notice Randall Scott coming in bending over and blocking out a Jefferson City player. Yes Thomas through cooperation of the rest of the team made another nice gain. Bottom: Find the ball, yes it's on the bottom of this pile with Jimmy Myers being the next thing to the bottom. It appears the entire St. Peters team is on top.

Advise Fall Check-Up To Protect Home Value

'Repairing Saves Money in Long Run,' Say Local Experts

According to local building experts, fall is the ideal time to institute a thorough check-up in your home, for with winter in the offing, your comfort depends on the weather-tightness of your home just as your happiness depends on its convenience.

Six-Point Check Recommended

Examination of the home for possible faults should be systematic in order that all repairs be made before serious damage occurs. Probably you are aware of some things that need fixing in your home, but a thorough check either by yourself or by a competent dealer may reveal others. Six basic parts of your house should be periodically checked so that you can keep comfort at the maximum and repair bills at the minimum.

1. Basement

Examine walls for cracks and joints for loose mortar. Check for evidence of leakage in walls and floor. See that there's no influx of air or moisture between the top of the foundation and the bottom of the house. Joists and rafters must be checked for sagging warping or rot, as should all other woodwork. Heating plant should be clean and at top efficiency for the cold weather to come. Grates, firebox and boiler should be examined, and the water heater or furnace coil looked over.

2. Walls, Ceiling, Floors

If you have plaster on your walls and ceilings, by all means examine them carefully for signs of cracking. Small faults are inexpensively corrected while large areas that may become loose through neglect will cost money to fix. Check floors in every room for wear, warping and finish. Examine floor and ceiling mouldings, doors, door jambs and locks. Note condition of paint on woodwork and kitchen walls. Don't forget to check inside your closets.

3. Plumbing

One of the most important points in your check-up. Make sure that all exposed water pipes are protected against freezing. If there are floor drains in your basement or garage, see that there is sufficient water in them to seal them. Check bathroom fixtures for working order. Watch out for leaky faucets and fixtures, for even a small leak will increase your water bill a great deal. Examine pipes for leaks.

4. Electrical Installations

Wiring should be carefully examined, and probably, if you suspect anything is wrong, an experienced electrician should be called in. Electrical fixtures, outlets and wiring are the sources of much potential danger, both to yourself and to the house. Insufficient insulation, short circuits or damaged fixtures might result in personal injury or fire.

5. Insulation

Everybody recognizes the value of good insulation these days. If you haven't any in your house, consider any one of the recognized types. Efficient insulation can be installed in walls and in your attic for nominal costs, and it will greatly increase the comfort of your home. In the winter, insulation, being a poor conductor of heat, will keep the heat from your furnace inside your house—preventing waste and reducing fuel bills. In the summer, the process is reversed, with the heat of the sun being kept out. Storm doors, weather-stripping around windows or other insulators that need checking or consideration. Storm windows should be cleaned, painted and gotten ready.

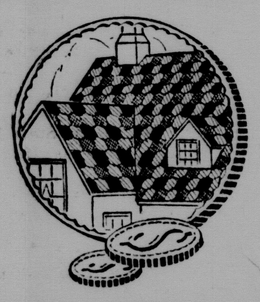

6. Exterior

Examine window glass . . . . . see that the putty is in good condition. Check paint for appearance, cracking, checking and peeling if your home is frame. Examine condition of mortar if it's of brick. Check the roof for leaks, loose shingles and holes. Examine flashing, gutters and down-spouts. Chimney should be cleaned of soot and checked for loose bricks or mortar. Check porch, steps and sidewalks.

Advise Immediate Action

Home owners are advised to have necessary repairs made at once. Small damage if not repaired immediately can grow into a large, burdensome repair bill. It pays, too, in comfort and satisfaction to keep your home in tip-top condition. Still another advantage is the fact that you're protecting your investment by keeping your home in good condition . . . the re-sale value remains high.

Waste Space Reclaimed

The basement recreation room has increased rapidly in popularity during the past few years. Ideal for game equipment and informal entertaining, many home planners are including basement game rooms as part of their basic home design. Hundreds of existing homes have unused basement space which could easily be converted into valuable recreation rooms at comparatively little expense. Game rooms may be made out of part of the basement, as was done in the home illustrated,

De Luxe Coach 6,326 last week was released for service after undergoing general overhauling and being remodeled from a regular coach to one of the De Luxe type. This is the fourth and last car of the four that have been rebuilt during the past two months at the local Missouri Pacific shops. The other coaches 6,327, 6328 and 6,329 were recently released and are now running on trains 11 and 12 from St. Louis to Pueblo. These cars have caused many favorable comments as to their beauty and fine riding accommodations.

In addition to having turned out the De Luxe coaches, the passenger car department is making rapid progress in the building of the four all-steel welded baggege cars. Car 4.263 has the sides applied, as well as the roof and the workmen are ready to begin on putting on the inside finish. The car 4,264 has the sides applied and the roof will be completed in a few days and work will start on the inside. The cars 4,265 and 4,266 are coming along fast and the sides are expected to go up in a few days, probably by the last of the coming week. These cars will be released for service sometime during the month of November.

In addition to the baggage cars, workmen are beginning to assemble the mail storage cars 2,060 and 2,061, which are being built entirely new. The underframes are taking form and sides will begin to go up shortly.

YESTERDAY: Joe is still in a critical condition, may have to undergo an operation. Worried and weary after her visit to the hospital, Sue Mary reads of federal agents hunting down subversive elements. She hurries to the federal building, tells her story to the department chief. He tells her not to worry, to go through with plans to meet Nick.

SUE MARY WINS

CHAPTER XXV

THE door to the law office was partly open. Sue Mary pushed it wide, stepping in to the dim quiet. She started back in surprise as Nick rose from a chair and came toward her. She had hoped to be there ahead of him. She wondered how he had come in, but she had no time to puzzle that out. He was beside her before she could speak. He took her in his arms, looked into her face.

"Why — Nick — you're here early."

"Not too early. A man in love doesn't like to wait." He held her tighter and kissed her long while she tried to push him away.

"No, Nick. No, please. You—you said you wanted to talk to me."

"We can always talk—" he said, kissing her again.

She wanted to run: to run anywhere; get away from Nick, from his lips, his arms. She was terrified, but she had to stay. He took her hand and led her to the office.

"We shouldn't be here," she repeated, but he only smiled. It was then that Vera came out of old Ross Clark's office.

"So—she did come," she said, looking at Sue Mary in her usual calm, poised, assured manner. "Well, now we can call it a night."

Sue Mary sat down suddenly. Her legs refused to hold her up and again she felt panic taking control of her. She wasn't alone.

Mr. Flanagan and his men should be here. But were they? She wondered if they were here—now. How much had they seen and heard?

She felt enough confidence in Flanagan and his men to believe they controlled the situation. Yet being with Nick was nerve-wracking enough.

VERA was stuffing some papers into her bag. "Let's go. She knows—that is unless she's a complete half-wit."

Sue Mary felt feminine indignation rising within her. "Half-wit?" she repeated angrily.

"You can't do anything about it now," Vera told her calmly. "I knew you saw too much the other night when I was here. The only way to keep you from talking—just in case you did understand what was going on—was to make you a partner. That's why you're here tonight.

"So you are in: in on whatever goes on here, and you hadn't better talk unless you want to blow yourself right out of a job and into plenty of trouble. You just do as we say and everything will be all right. Won't it, Nick?"

But Nick wasn't looking at Vera. His gaze was on Sue Mary.

"We can talk later," he said to Vera without turning toward her. "If you've got the stuff you'd better get going. Someone might come. We've been lucky so far."

"All right, let's go then."

"I'll come down in a minute," he said.

"What's stopping you from coming now?"

He turned to her abruptly, "Maybe I want to say something to Sue Mary."

"Well, you can say it at the apartment. If it isn't safe for me to stay here, then it isn't safe for either of you." Vera's briskness wasn't so emphatic.

"I said I'd be along in a minute. Start down. I'll meet you in the lobby."

Vera walked out and Nick waited a moment. Then he turned to Sue Mary and drew her to him.

"Kiss me," he told her. "Nothing's going to happen to you. Stop trembling. You're in this, but you belong to me and we're going to come out ahead. Right on the top—"

"No, Nick. Let me go."

His lips were on hers again for an endless eternity. Vera's voice, furious and cold, broke them apart.

"So—that's it. You had to talk to her. Natalie was right. You're in love with the little fool."

Her voice rose to a high key. "You've used me—just as you used her. Maybe she isn't the only fool. But you won't get away with it this time, Nick. Not as far as I'm concerned anyway. I'll talk—I'll talk—"

"That's right, lady, you're going to talk. And soon."

NICK whirled around at the sound of the strange voice. Sue Mary saw Flanagan in the doorway, smiling. Other men were crowding through, behind him. One came out of Ross Clark's office. Several had guns.

"What the—" Nick muttered.

Vera started for the door, but an agent stopped her, motioned her back into the center of the room.

"Take the two of them along," Flanagan ordered. "And get those papers away from her. There won't be any airport site announcement tomorrow. I've settled that deal already after talking to young Clark.

"Now, maybe, good citizen Nicky can tell us about the labor trouble at Smithson—as well as a lot of other things we've been wondering about."

They were finally gone, Vera berating Nick and Nick trying desperately to hush her angry flow of words.

"Nice people," Flanagan said to Sue Mary. "I'm sorry you had to go through this, but it seemed the safest way. Get them here as though nothing was going to happen and then nab them.

"You've helped us plenty. Most people want to help these days, but too many of them let their imaginations run wild. But this—this was the real thing. You've done your part tonight."

She felt a glow of gratitude, but her eyes were on the clock. She wanted to get to the hospital. They might be operating on Joe even now.

"Sure, I know," Flanagan was saying. "You're worried about the boy friend. Well, get along. I'll put you in a cab. I have a hunch you're going to find everything all right. You deserve to have it that way."

SUE MARY didn't remember much about the ride. She walked down the corridor to Joe's room. Suppose it was empty! Suppose he had gone to the operating room never to return! She met the nurse at the door.

"Tell me—is he—?"

"He's fine. They won't have to operate. It will be a tough struggle back, but he's out of danger. And you can go in—just a second, though."

A second— It was a whole lifetime.

The beginning of a new life, she thought, standing by Joe's bed watching his regular breathing, touching his helpless hand. It was a new life and no matter what happened around them, no matter what problems arose in this strange, confused world they would face them together.

The curtains moved gently in the breeze and a faint sound of music came from a radio in another wing of the building. It was midnight and a station was signing off.

"God bless America—"

She leaned over and kissed Joe's lips.

• Your Nerves

This is one of a series of special articles revealing typical cases of nervous and mental disorders and their treatment through thought control as carried out by the author and his associates at the Boston Dispensary, famous charitable health clinic.

By Winfred Rhoades

If you are going to derive lasting benefit from this series of articles you must learn the art of voluntary relaxation — physical, mental and emotional.

During the last 150 years man has been obliged to deal with more new ideas, more new inventions, more acceleration of the pace of life, more changes in the conditions of life, than during the hundreds of years before, and perhaps thousands. Complexities of life— home life, school life, social life, business life, economic, political and international life — has developed faster than man's nervous strength. The agitated emotions cry out for a bit of calm, the strained body cries for some new vigor, the starved soul for some kind of real sustenance.

Speed at work, at play, speed in thinking and feeling, speed even in sleep — incessant speed lays waste the body's powers and keeps it from storing up reserves. The nervous system needs periods of relaxation, the digestive system needs them, the entire physical organism needs them, the mind, the emotions, the spirit—the whole man needs them.

You can learn to relax. You must learn to relax. You can make your body just as responsive to the idea of relaxation as it is to the idea of dynamic exertion. If you tell your feet to press down on the floor they do so. If you tell them to rest lightly on the floor they do that. You can teach your entire body to be equally responsive to the power of thought, and to be immediately so.

Lie down upon your back on a hard couch or on the floor, or, if that is not possible sit comfortably in a chair. Then close your eyes. The mere closing of the eyes suggests relaxation and rest and peace, while it blots out distracting sights and helps to prevent distracting thoughts. Breathe deeply and quietly; slow, full, deep breaths that reach all portions of your lungs. That also helps to relax the body and to induce the mood of peace.

Then, beginning with your toes and continuing up to your face, pick out each set of muscles in succession and tell them to relax. Concentrate your mind upon each set of muscles until you feel the tenseness go and limpness take its place.

When you have thus taken each set of muscles separately in that fashion talk to your whole body. Say: "Let go—relax—rest!" Say it several times, not vocally but mentally. Then say: "I am heavy. My legs are heavy—my trunk is heavy—my arms are heavy—my head is heavy. My whole body is heavy. Oh! how heavy I am." After that say: "Relaxation and peace—quietness and confidence—power through repose."

Say the words mentally, and say them slowly. Then consciously open your whole being to the life and vitality that enfold you continually and draw them in. Take at least 10 minutes for this twice a day, and better still take fifteen.

Thus you help yourself to get free from nervousness, irritability, depression, fear and other morbific emotions, and at the same time to get relief from your pains and other physical symptoms, and to build up in yourself a new ability to meet the challenge of life.

NEXT: Emotions and Blood Pressure.

The 1940 Census

Here are five true and false questions based on the 1940 U. S. census, preliminary figures for which have been revealed. How many of them can you answer correctly?

1. The 1940 census revealed the population on April 1 was about 131,400,000 or 8,600,000 greater than in 1930.

2. The rate of U. S. population growth in the 1930-1940 decade was greater than in the preceding 10 years.

3. Six states, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Vermont, showed population decreases between 1930 and 1940.

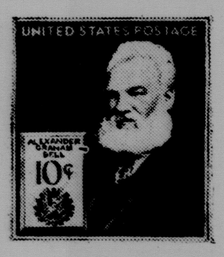

4. The District of Columbia, although it showed a population jump, still has fewer persons than any of the 48 states.

5. The five largest states, in order, are New York, California, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Stories in Stamps

AMERICA honors the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell, with the 10-cent stamp above, fifth of the inventors group and final issue of the Famous Americans series. The Bell stamp will be placed on first-day sale at Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.

Although his invention of the telephone brought him fame and wealth, transmission of speech by electricity was not Bell's life work. He devoted most of his time to teaching deaf mutes to speak. His wife was one of his pupils.

Bell's grandfather was an instructor in speech, his father invented a universal phonetic alphabet, which was devised to allow a person to reproduce sounds of any language. As a lad, Bell and his brother "invented" a mechanical speaking head, which attained a screeching "mama" before being abandoned.

Bell also taught his dog to speak. By manipulating the animal's lips and throat, a growl was ...ed into "How are you, ...ma?" but the dog could ... manage it without Bell's help.

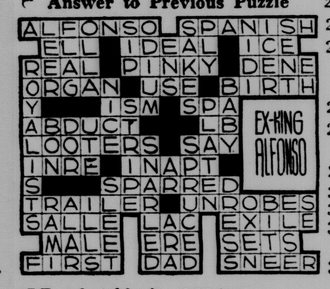

In later life Bell became interested in flying, invented a hydroplane, contributed generously to aeronautical study.

Where Leader of "Free France Landed in Africa

These native huts at Duala, in former German West African colony of the Cameroons, may seem unimpressive. But they are symbolic of the prize of 900,000 square miles and the support of 3,500,000 people for which the Vichy regime and Gen. Charles de Gaulle's "Free France" forces are contending. It was at Duala that Gen. de Gaulle recently landed to consolidate his hold on French Equatorial Africa.
